REU and YOU...
POWERFUL TOGETHER

Redding Electric Utility (REU), in partnership with the local Self Help Home Improvement Project (SHHIP), the California Department of Community Services and Development, and PG&E, received City Council approval August 15, 2017 for its new Low-Income Energy Efficiency Program (LIEEP). REU anticipates the new program will be available for customers to apply within 30 days. LIEEP will provide income-qualified owners and renters with a variety of measures designed to increase energy efficiency in their homes. This may include ceiling fans, smart thermostats, ceiling insulation, LED lights, plug load controllers, refrigerators, duct upgrades, window replacements, as well as many other energy saving measures. The new program is also a local job creator; SHHIP will hire two full-time installers to fulfill REU's new LIEEP program.

REU has earmarked $2 million to the program, which will be funded by the sale of excess emissions allowances allocated to REU as part of the state's cap-and-trade regulations designed to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

REU estimates customers will save on average 925 kilowatt hours (kWh) per year ($141.34/year at REU's current kWh charge - $0.1528/kWh). "This new program will benefit our lower-income customers by reducing their energy use and their energy bills; by contracting with SHHIP, we will be able to reach more customers, achieve more savings and accomplish the work faster", said Dan Beans, REU Interim Utility Director.

For over 20 years, REU has provided assistance programs for income-qualified customers including the Utility's Lifeline, Lifeline Plus, CARES, and SHARES Programs.

To determine qualification for LIEEP, REU customers should visit www.reupower.com, SHHIP's website at www.shhip.org or contact SHHIP at 378-6905.

Redding Library

Everyone knows that the public library is a great source for information. But, did you know that Shasta Public Libraries offers access to free online tutoring, homework help, and research databases? We have a wide variety of online resources that are accessible from your home computer or even your smartphone, all you need is your library card number.

One resource that we are quite proud to offer is Brainfuse HelpNow. Students in kindergarten through college can get live help with their homework, upload and receive feedback on papers, take practice quizzes, and explore a number of other invaluable learning tools. Parents, also, can use HelpNow to refresh their memories to stay up to date on what their children are learning.

Connect with these resources seven days a week by visiting our website www.shastalibraries.org/eLibrary.
